Subject: Sharing of site information- Tower Standard

John,

At our meeting on October 22, it was my understanding that site information would be shared, as soon as it became available, to all parties. I believe that in following this procedure, that it will save time and effort for everyone, and there won't be any confusion about who received what information and when it was received.

Kristen Hanson talked to me this morning and told me that Dave Larsen from REI said that he would submit information, such as boring logs to DNR and then we would need to request the information from DNR.

Please let me know what your understanding of this process is, and how we can move beyond repetitive individual requests for information and have all parties receive the information at the same time from all entities. It would be very helpful, and save much time, if we can receive technical site information directly from REI as they submit it to you and others at DNR. Field and travel schedules for all involved parties can delay sharing of information, which is especially critical with the approach of winter weather.

Thank you. I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Regards,

Bob
